

Marisa Estevez

Marisa Estevez is currently serving as a Development Associate at Cornerstone Craftsman and also contributing her expertise to the Wolf Trap Foundation. She holds a Magna Cum Laude degree in International Business from Dickinson College, where she focused on Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship. Marisa's career trajectory reflects her commitment to using her business acumen to support and grow nonprofit organizations.

While at Dickinson College, Marisa gained valuable hands-on experience working with small nonprofits in the Pennsylvania area, as well as providing consulting services for the Cumberland County Chamber of Commerce. These roles helped her develop a strong foundation in nonprofit strategy, community engagement, and organizational growth.

Her career goal is to continue using her skills to drive positive impact in the nonprofit sector, helping organizations grow and thrive. Marisa is particularly interested in leveraging business strategies to help nonprofits expand their reach and sustainability.

Outside of work, Marisa is deeply committed to her community. She enjoys drawing and painting, spending time outdoors with family and friends, and cherishing moments with her dog.
