

Poorva Vasavada

Poorva Vasavada serves as the Family Engagement Coordinator at Cornerstone Craftsman. She has an academic background in Clinical Psychology and Forensic Psychology. Originally from India, her interests lie in cross-cultural differences and how those inform youth outcomes.

Over the course of her undergrad and two graduate programs, she has held multiple internships, all of which in some way have dealt with child protection, or supporting the youth. Her work with the International Center for Missing & Exploited Children (ICMEC) fueled her interest in the field of child and youth protection, especially from a policy and law perspective.

As someone outside of the status quo, she understands the importance of advocating for one's self - in a vocational setting and otherwise - and providing the strength and tools for it. In her role here, she hopes to help facilitate the organization's goal of providing holistic support and development.
